

DRIVA MOBILE BARBERSHOP

You already go to them. Now let them find you.

You have the van, the skill and 1,808 people watching. What you do not have is a single place for any of them to book you without sending a message first.

WHERE QUALITY MEETS CONVENIENCE · WE COME TO YOU

WHAT WE LOOKED AT

Four things we found.

All four were checked on 14 August 2026. These are observations, not opinions, and you can verify every one of them yourself in about five minutes.

1,808 followers, nothing to click 01

Your Instagram has a real audience. The bio has no link in it, so every one of those people has to message you and wait for a reply before they can book a cut.

Source: instagram.com/driva_the_barber, checked 14 Aug 2026.

You do not come up in search 02

We searched for a mobile barber across the region. Driva did not appear anywhere in the results. The mobile barbers who did appear have one thing in common, and it is not that they cut hair better than you.

Source: Google search for mobile barber services in the region, 14 Aug 2026.

You are the booking system

03

Everything runs through WhatsApp by hand. That works until you are mid-cut, driving, or asleep. Anyone who messages you then waits, and some of them do not wait.

Source: WhatsApp Business is the only booking channel listed.

The cards have run out

04

The one thing you could physically hand someone is gone. Everything you have built is on platforms you do not own, and none of it points anywhere.

Source: confirmed with you directly.

WHY THIS MATTERS MORE FOR YOU

A no-show costs a shop barber a chair. It costs you the chair and the drive.

That is the whole difference between Driva and a barbershop with a door. A shop fills the gap with a walk-in. You cannot. You have already spent the fuel and the time getting there, and the slot behind it is now too tight to sell. So the fix has to remove the empty drive, not just record it afterwards. Either they confirm before you set off, or nobody books at all and you only ever cut the people already standing in front of you.

WHAT WE WOULD BUILD

Five pieces. Built once.

You own all of it. If you ever stop working with us, it stays yours and it keeps running.

01

A website that updates itself

Not a brochure. A page that says where you are parked today, what time you are starting, and whether you are out at all. Your start time moves depending on the day, so a normal website would just print the wrong hours every morning. This one is right because you change it in two taps from your phone, and everyone sees it instantly.

02

Two ways to kill the no-shows. You pick.

You tried a booking app and the no-shows killed it. That is not bad luck. A slot someone booked for free costs them nothing to break. So here are both options and you choose on the day.

Option A - booking, but nobody is on the list until they confirm. They pick a time, they get a text, and if they do not reply the slot reopens. You only ever drive for people who answered.

Option B - no bookings at all. People check in when they get to the van, exactly like they do now, but everyone at home can see how many are ahead before they leave the house. No appointment to break, so no such thing as a no-show. If someone is not there when they are up, you take the next person, same as always.

03

A Google profile built for a business with no address

Google supports mobile businesses properly. You set a service radius instead of a storefront, and you start appearing when someone nearby searches for a barber who comes to them. Right now that search does not find you at all.

04

Reviews asked for automatically

Every client gets asked after their cut, without you remembering to ask. Every customer, no filtering, which is both the honest way and the only way Google allows.

05

One link, and a code for the van

Instagram bio, Facebook, WhatsApp and a QR code on the van all point to the same page. It replaces the cards you have run out of, and it never runs out.

Let's talk it through.

There is no price on this document on purpose. What it costs depends on which parts of this you actually want, and that is a conversation, not a number on a page. Elliott will go through it with you in person.

What we can tell you now: the build itself is free. You own everything we make, and it stays yours whatever happens afterwards.

IF YOU WANT TO GO AHEAD

Next steps.

THIS WEEK

You send over your prices, your service area and a handful of photos of your work.

WITHIN SEVEN DAYS

We build it and show you the whole thing working before a dollar changes hands.

ONCE YOU ARE HAPPY

It goes live, the Google profile gets submitted, and the link goes in every bio.

Prepared for Jermaine at Driva Mobile Barbershop · 14 August 2026

Premmisus · elliott@premmisus.com

Every figure in this document is an observation with a source and a date beside it. We have not estimated what you will earn, because we do not know, and anyone who tells you they do is guessing.